IRISH WINE GEESE

The 'Wine Geese' refers to Irish people who emigrated and made a significant impact on the world's wine industry, in countries like France, Spain, USA and beyond.

As they settled in their new countries, they became key people in the wine industry, starting vineyards and wineries. Notable families, like the Barton (Léoville-Barton), Lynch (Lynch-Bages), and Kirwan families in Bordeaux, and in more modern times, the Barretts (Chateau Montelena) in California, have been responsible for some of the world's most iconic wines.

The story of the Wine Geese is a fascinating blend of resilience and cultural exchange, showcasing how Irish heritage influenced wine production around the world. As an Irish family-owned restaurant, The Pembroke proudly shares the wonderful influence Ireland has had on the wine world through the Wine Geese listed below.
